SILK MILL STRIKE NEARS SETTLEMENT ON 47-HOUR BASIS

Workmen May Return to Work Monday Pending Final Decision by War Board.

PATERSON, N. J., Feb. 7.—Most of the silk workers now on strike will be back at work early next week on the basis of forty-seven hours a week, if the resolution framed by the joint committee of manufacturers and workers at a conference yesterday have any bearing on the situation. This was the first organized attempt made by both parties to the controversy to make a conclusive statement of their positions.

Another joint meeting will be held to-night after the separate committees have conferred with the organizations which they represent, and it is expected that, now the opening wedge has been placed, the meeting to-night will bring the contenders much nearer to conciliation.

That the local manufacturers have conferred with leaders of the industry in other sections, with a view to standardizing working hours throughout the eastern section, and so doing away with one phase of the objections against shorter hours for the Paterson workers, was indicated in the report of the joint committee, which followed.

"The manufacturers adhered to their earlier proposal that the whole matter of standardizing hours in the silk industry be left to the National War Labor Board to decide, and reported that the silk manufacturers of New York and vicinity, a number of manufacturers of Jersey City, Hoboken and Union Hill, and several employers with large interests in Pennsylvania have agreed to join in having the War Labor Board act and to abide by its decision.

"Representatives of the workers, while they agree that standardization would be a good thing, hold tenaciously to their belief that any resumption of work pending the War Labor Board's decision should be on the basis of forty-seven hours per week.

The only disturbing element in the conciliatory measures is the I. W. W. and similar organizations. Textile workers in Passaic and Garfield, N. J., numbering 6,000 quit work yesterday in West Hoboken, 3,100 struck.

FREDERICK L. JENKINS DIES IN BROOKLYN HOME

President of Police Veterans' Association After Years of Secretary to Superintendent.

FREDERICK L. JENKINS, for many years Secretary to the Superintendent of Police in Brooklyn, died last evening at his home, No. 121 Bainbridge Street.

Born in Manhattan 74 years ago, Mr. Jenkins lived the greater part of his life in Brooklyn, where he took active part in public affairs. During the Civil War he was engaged in transporting supplies as super cargo and purser for the Cromwell line. He was purser of the steamer Chesapeake, plying between New York and Portland, Me., and sold the tickets to Lieut. Braine, the Confederate officer who captured the vessel when at sea, but did not make the voyage because of sudden illness. Mr. Jenkins was for several terms President of the Police Veterans' Association and of the Brooklyn Masonic Lodge. He was a member of the Society of Old Brooklynites. Since his retirement from the police secretariat, he had been a member of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. The widow, Mrs. Mary Cochran Jenkins, survives.

Speeds Driving Child to Hospital in Auto That Strikes Her.

Agnes Chanke, seven, of No. 222 Main Street, Cliffside, N. J., was running to the grocery store early last evening, when she was struck by an automobile driven by Herbert Viola, a mill owner of Cliffside. Viola sped with the child to the North Hudson Hospital, where she died of a fractured skull. A crowd of women who witnessed the accident, seeing Viola place the injured child in his car, told the police he was trying to avoid arrest. The police found Viola's automobile outside the hospital. He was arrested, charged with manslaughter.
